PASTOR’S CORNER

My Dear Family,

“God calls all of us and each of us.” That’s not some poetic redundancy, that is a statement of the nature of our calling from God: He calls all of us as a whole and each of us as individuals. As a whole, all of us are called to sanctification. We sanctify ourselves through prayer and love of God. We sanctify the world by sharing our faith in knowledge and practice. But what of our calling as individuals?

As individuals, each of us is called to carry out this universal task of sanctification in a way that is uniquely our own. Some are called as parents, others as priests and deacons, others as monks or nuns. Each of us is called in our own unique way to build up the kingdom of God. How we do so depends on who we are. Ultimately, each of us is called in a unique way to participate in the Church’s universal mission: Sanctifying ourselves and sanctifying the world.
