PASTOR'S CORNER

My Dear Family,

Our community has many names: Church, Kingdom of God, Kingdom of Heaven, Divine Communion, and many other such names. And all of these names express something of our community of faith. One thing worth reflecting on is how we were made for community. We are social creatures and it is part of nature to engage in connections with others, forming meaningful relationships and allowing ourselves to grow together, supported by each other in all we do.

But sometimes, our ego can get the better of us, and we can end up isolating ourselves because of pride. For this reason, the Lord provides us with practical solutions to our disagreements and ruptures within our community, established to practice unity and communion. And in these solutions, one element remains constant: communication. The more we speak to each other, the more we understand each other. When you have difficulty with people, talk to them and more than that, listen to them. Only when both sides are heard can both sides be understood.
